still at the sight of the Brodle players. "Where's the Lilipewshes?" she de-"Where's the Lilipewshes?" she demanded in a voice that cut off Mark Lynch, the heavy man for Brodie, in the inldst of a hoarse and terrible threat.

After the first shock had subsided a nlayer from "On the Bowery" descended and informed the young lady of the Lilibutians's change of base for rehearsals.

schwartze promised to come over yesterday afternoon, when we met at Clarendon Hall and pay us for the week and two days that he owes us. Instead of coming, he sent word that some of the costumes had been taken, and if these were returned he would pay the money. "I wish you could have seen the costumes. The only thing that actually covered us enough to keep us out of jail were the tights and slippers, which the girls furnished themselves. All that the manager gave us was a piece of chiffon, which we wound around us like a kind of cloud. As for the rest of a scanty attire, he didn't care. So that's a snide; the costumes weren't stolen, for the one reason, at least, that they are not worth stealing."

After yesterday's meeting the löogirls of the Eldorade, who has gathered in Clarendon Hall, expecting to get their wages, decided to meet again to-day and perfect an organization under the protection of the Central Labor Union.

That this is not going to be done without a squabble is already certain. It is necessary to understand the professional classification of ballet-girls, to grasp the nature of the row that is already brewing. Girls are classed and paid by the week as follows: First line, $25; second line, $25; third line, $18; fourth line, $18; fifth line, $12; sixt line, $10.

second line, $20; third line, $18; fourth line, $18; fifth line, $12; sixth line, $10.

The scale of wages given has been the standard for years, but recently the hard times have reduced it somewhat, particularly among those aiready poorest paid. The lines refer to their places in the ballet. The first line is the one immediately facing the audience and should naturally be composed of the prettiest girls and the best dancers, and so on towards the rear in the order of looks and proficiency.

The girls in the first three lines are usually veterans, who have been endowed by nature with good faces and figures. Beyond that, and particularly the fifth and sixth lines, the girls are collected more to produce the effect of numbers than for their individual appearance and skill. Little or no previous experience is required there.

The leaders regard these inferiors from two points of view. One side, and possed to having any thing to do with the fifth and sixth line girls. The other side, more charitably inclined, say that these poor girls need protection more than their expert and better paid sisters, and that if they were brought into the union they could be taught the shamefulness of working at beggarly wages.

As the question who shall constitute shamefulness of working at beggarly wages.

As the question who shall constitute an association is one of the first en-countered in forming any organization the ballet girls will strike this almost immediately when they meet to organ

Sam Wah, an aged Chinese laundryman, of 19 Henry street, is nursing a cracked head to-day as the result of a murderous assault upon him by robbers. Wah and his nephew, Sam Wah, jr., were froning shirts in the laundry at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a boy shout sixteen years old, but very tall, and two other young men entered the place, one of them being a negro. Without any ceremony, the boy went his pockets with the pennies that were in the top compartment. Sam Wah grasped his iron tighter and demanded that the boy return the money and get out. For answer, the boy seized a stool and struck Wah a terrible blow on the head, which felled him to the floor. When he attempted to get up, he was struck in almost the same spot by an iron bar wielded by the negro.

Sam Wah, jr., had, at the first sign of disturbance betaken himself to the rearroom, where he hid behind a curtain. The elder Chinamen had made no outcry during all this time, although the blood was streaming from his wounds. Two Italian barbers text door, who heard the noise, looked into the laundry. At sight of them the robbers walked leisurely into the street and as far as Catherine street, where they broke into a run.

Wah had his wounds dressed by Kwong Lung Jin, a Chinese doctor, of 22 Mott street. The police had no report of the affair up to 1 o'clock this afternoon.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Lack of wind has made the New York Yacht Club's cruise something of a fail ure so far this week, but that is one of the chances taken by the amateur skipper in midsummer cruising. "And the fourth man?" asked the officer.

"He called me Gov'nor and got a drink. The fifth one took me fur a judge and the sixth one fur a Congressman."

"Well, what can I do for you?"

"Jes' kinder hang around fur a spell and explain matters. When the seventh chap comes up and calls me George Washington and wants to know if the ole woman has got over her rheumatis and the baby has cut its back teeth, I'd like to hev you take him one side and tell him I'm only Thomas White, and that the biggest thing I ever done in all my life was to shoulder a bar'l of flour on a bet of 50 cents. Durn this greatness! In the fust place, I don't want it, and in the next, I'm down to 'lev'n cents in cash and hev got to live on cheese and crackers fur the next two days to come."

Brighton had a regular old-fashioned

GOSSIP OF THE TURF.

Bergen rode weak races on both Hardy Fox and Dr. Garnet. His work on the latter was especially poor. Trouble was played heavily in the last race. So much money came in on St. Anthony that Trouble's odds remained pretty steady at twos. St. Anthony sulked badly in the first part of the race and the Tapuble crowd won.

"Virginia" Bradley bet on both Clarus and Panway and landed some nice bets.

Senators Hill and Murphy were pleased to see the New Yorks win, and the Hon. David B. sat through the entire game.

With the opening game stowed away in the victory bag, it looks easy to get away with two more in Washington. Mercer is their hardest twirler. Sullivan may twirl to-day. Meekin will do the trick for New York.

Brooklyn. New York salutes you! Do it again. Every time you take a feather out of the Orioles' plumage you fetch New York 10 points nearer the Baltys. We are now but 10 points away.

Stein was never in better shape than vesterday afternoon, and his curves were simply gorgeous. He was in the game, too, to a large extent, as a few difficult assists will testify.

La Chance did a brilliant piece of It seems an improbability that Gran-nan would be a gainer by disseminating such stories as these. Finally when the petition signed by every bookmaker in the ring not in the employ of Walbaum was presented to the President he crawled into his hole and pulled it after him.

"I talked with Grannan and tried to reason with him. He said himself he was going to quit and that was all there was to it." was going to quit and that was all there was to it."

This was an admission as to the truth of the story Mr. Walbaum spent the afternoon in denying. It makes Saratoga's President appear small, and it will not gain him any friends. Possibly Grannan may be removed in some other way. He was, as Mr. Walbaum remarked, rather insinuatingly, yesterday afternoon, ruled off in San Francisco. It was for the same reason that other bookles had not nerve and daring enough to compete with him.

Grannan, by the way, made a series of dazzling plunges during yesterday afternoon. He won about $5,000 over Uranla's victory, and bet the whole lump back on Salvation in the third race. Starting in again on Henry of Navarre he loaded up every book in the rirg. Part of this money he bet back on Fondoline, and as she lost he quit a moderate winner. ondoline, and and anoderate winner.

Salvator's get are not as successful as one might suppose, when one considers what a high-cass of mares was at this stallion's disposal. No Salvators have yet scored in the East, and Sallie Woodford i sabout the only one to win in the West. Matt Byrnes must have a hoodoo of the worst kind with him. His stable usually so powerful, has not yet scored a win. Midgley should have won with Sadie yesterday, but then "nears" don't count.
